Jones Architecture designed the renovation of an early 1970's dining hall to modernize the space and transform the collegiate dining experience on the Brockton campus. The interior renovations include new furniture, finishes and millwork; more variety of seating types; new vending/self-serve options; a new condiments area; staff dining; and a student life services suite with reception, offices, and student work/study area. Building envelope updates include new windows to improve lighting and thermal efficiency, and the addition of an outdoor seating terrace.
